The Supply Dealers and Manufacturers Meet This Morning

NEW CONVENTION FINISHES WORK

Business Men Meet at Jefferson This Morning to Discuss Condition of Trade in Country.

Badges labeling machinery and supply manufacturers and dealers from all parts of the country assembled here morning, outnumbered the insignia of the charities delegates in the lobby of the Jefferson Hotel last night. Every indication promises a large attendance, reservations made up to last night indicating that between the delegates and the members of their families who will accompany them, there will be not fewer than 600 people in the party. On every train yesterday afternoon and last night visitors came flocking in, local machinery dealers, who form the reception committee, looking after the comfort of the guests.

in, local machinery dealers, who form the reception committee, looking after the comfort of the guests.

Meetings here in joint session the convention really represents three bodies, two of which are of national proportions, while the most ancient, the Southern Supply and Machinery Dealers' Association, represents all the Southern Supply and Machinery Dealers' Association and the American Supply and Machinery Manufacturers' Association. Last year the three met by agreement in Cincinnati at the same time, and so successful did the plan prove that their sessions will be held jointly hereafter, although they maintain their separate identity and have their own officers and committees.

Meet This Morning.

Each of the three organizations hold its initial meeting this morning at 9:30 clock in various parlors of tite Jefferson Hotel, sitting in executive session.

Each will be formally organized, will appoint its door-keepers, approve its minutes, and hear the reports of its minutes, and hear the reports of its minutes, and hear the reports of its offers and committees. At 2 o'clock this afternoon the three associations sit in open session, when a group pleture will be taken in front of the Jefferson Auditorium of the entire joint convention, Following this, the three presidents will make addresses—Mr. C.

H. Briggs, of Dallas, Texas, president of the National Supply and Machinery Dealers' Association, and Mr. W. W. Mix, president of the American Supply and Machinery Manufacturers' Association.

An address will be made by Hon John S. Hord. collector of internal revenue for the Philippine Islands, on The Value of Trade Organization. The Value of Trade Organization in relation to trade in the Convention, and will form a most interesting part of the program, as will offers and committees of the National Dealers' to the American Supply to discuss the value of organization in relation to trade in the East. Treatment or training of its wards. If it were not for them, it would not exist. The financial side is important, but not all important, nor even most important tutlons come from every locality in the State, and are largely the product of local conditions. Many of them have been in local institutions; consequently it is of the utmost importance that the public should have accurate knowledge of the general iduation regarding charities and a lively interest in those local conditions which bring forth a moral and financial burden to the State, "It should have an intelligent desire its should have an intelligent desire."

preventiable causes of dependency. It is essential for the cause of public charities that there shall be maintained a wise public opinion, which shall permeate the entire State. This it should be the duty of a board of State charities to foster and develop."

Mrs. Harrett at Her Best.
Expressing her delight at having the conference meet upon Virginia soil, Mrs. Barrett told of her first visit to Richmond and her hurried departure with the thousands when the city was evacuated. "I first understood the value of public relief at Appomattox," she said, "when we had to appeal for food, after seven days of suffering.

"I remember a can of condensed milk. It tasted so good that I have always liked it, and so have my children. Indeed, they inherited it."

Her subject was the need and value of State supervision of public and private charities, and she pointed out the reasons why the institution, supported by funds voted directly by the people.

ard, went to Oklahoma and spoke be-fore the Legislature in the interest of good laws. She explained then in de-tail, telling what had been enacted and what would be passed. "State buildwhat would be passed. "State build-ing." she said. " is something of a family affair and the women ought to have a hand in it."
